Ekonomisk Kausalitet [Causality in Economics]

Reference: 53020

Copy signed by the author, 1 vol. 8vo., Skrifter utgivna av Fahlbeckska Stiftelsen XXIV, C. W. K. Gleerup, Lund - Malmö, 1936, 155 pp. Text in Swedish, only.

Comment: VG copy (rubbed cover, otherwise a very clean and still uncut copy) of this working paper published by a Swedish economist, Johan Åkerman. J. Åkerman studied in Stockholm, then in Harvard in 1919-1920. His thesis on rhythm in economics is reported to be the first Swedish academic paper that included econometrics. This copy belonged to a French academic, prof. Georges-Henri Bousquet (1903-1978). G.-H. Bousquet, a lawyer as well as an economist, was a disciple of Pareto and a friend of Joseph Schumpeter. He became fond of Islamic studies as well, when he was a leading Professor at the University of Algier in the 50s. Prof. G.-H. Bousquet spoke both French and Dutch as mother tongues, and was fluent in an amazing number of foreign languages.
